FRSA's Accidental Injury, Illness and Death Insurance Scheme

Accidents do happen and whilst we all hope that nothing ever happens to us; what are the consequences of an injury to you whilst you are working within the fire service? There would inevitably be some financial impact if you could not work for sometime. Indeed, if you had a serious accident that stopped you from working altogether, this could impact upon the income from your primary employment. In some instances, there could be a case for an Employers' Liability claim. However, these take many months and in some cases years to finalise, leaving the injured party without any financial help for some considerable time. We have experienced members' financial hardship and have decided to act on your behalf to avoid such circumstances in the future.

The FRSA is pleased to offer our membership exclusive insurance cover providing you with protection and your family with peace of mind should you have an accident or contract an illness or disease whilst you are working within the fire service.

The cover includes £30,000 accidental death insurance and £175 per week accidental injury and illness cover.
